

BEST COPY

AVAILABLE

Nation Seen Heading for Summit Parley It Doesn't Want

Knowland Urges U. S.: Refuse Khrush's Terms

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland protested today that a Middle East summit meeting on terms laid down by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev would result in "another Munich" for the West.

The Californian particularly objected to Khrushchev's demand that Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru participate in the proposed meeting at the United Nations.

Sen. Knowland also suggested President Eisenhower might consider calling in former Presidents Herbert Hoover and Harry S. Truman for advice on the crisis.

DAMAGE

Of Khrushchev's summit terms, Sen. Knowland told a news conference:

"We cannot fully stand by and let him say who will attend the conference and how it will be conducted. If we do, the United Nations' effectiveness would be severely damaged and it could well be the day of the League of Nations."

He also criticized Khrushchev's insistence that the United States vote on a resolution to demand that the United States support the United Nations' effectiveness would be severely damaged and it could well be the day of the League of Nations."

He also criticized Khrushchev's insistence that the United States vote on a resolution to demand that the United States support the United Nations' effectiveness would be severely damaged and it could well be the day of the League of Nations."

He also criticized Khrushchev's insistence that the United States vote on a resolution to demand that the United States support the United Nations' effectiveness would be severely damaged and it could well be the day of the League of Nations."

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles were discussing the situation with U. S. officials.

NOT A HINT

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty would give no hint as to the draft's contents.

He said he did not expect "any immediate answer" to Khrushchev because this country intends to consult its allies, principally Britain and France, before dispatching a message to the Kremlin.

The President and Mr. Dulles conferred by telephone before attending a National Security Council meeting at 9 a.m.

Khrushchev provisionally accepted the Anglo-American proposal for the conference, but wants India and the Arab states to be represented.

Khrushchev also wants the conference to open Monday in New York. He specifically named the city in his official note to President Eisenhower.

The informed view here is that the United States will reject the Monday date as too soon to permit adequate preliminary arrangements.

COMMITTED

Further, Western leaders, including Mr. Dulles, are already committed to a series of diplomatic conferences in Europe next week.

Khrushchev's demand for inclusion of Arab leaders and India's Jawaharlal Nehru as participants was not seen as insurmountable barrier to conference.

Answering questions called him Tuesday by Kingsley Smith, United Press national vice president, Khrushchev said he was going to meet in New York, or any place indicated by the West.

AGAINST IT

The United States still does not want the conference or expect it to accomplish anything in lessening world tensions. It is clear that if the summit meeting falls thru in the final stages of preparation it will not cause any sorrow in U. S. diplomatic quarters.

French government sources said Gen. Charles De Gaulle would refuse to attend a New York conference. They said he feels strongly that an East-West summit meeting in the Security Council would turn into a propaganda free-for-all. He is reported to favor holding the conference on "neutral ground," such as Geneva.

One condition of Khrushchev's acceptance is that Gen. De Gaulle attend.

Nehru said in New Delhi that he will go to the conference only if he is invited by both East and West.

The Eisenhower Administration's hesitancy to negotiate with Russia on the summit conference stirred an undercurrent of criticism among some U. S. congressmen.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey wanted that the Administration's "reluctant approach" to the conference would "weaken and undermine" America's position in peace talks with Russia.

REBUFFED BY CIA

Meanwhile, the president of the U. S. Arab-Asian Institute said he was rebuffed when he tried to inform Central Intelligence Agency Director Allen Dulles about the impending revolt in Iraq two months ago.

Salem Bader, head of the institute which represents a group of American business interests in the Middle East, made the statement in a recorded interview with independent news broadcaster Jack Laurence.

Mr. Bader said Mr. Dulles refused to see him after he wrote saying he had information about an "impending Western Mid Eastern riot."

Meanwhile, the United Nations has begun working on security and protocol problems connected with the summit conference. It was reported U. S. Marines may be asked to guard a 13 block approach to the building.

A source close to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld said the UN would be ready by Monday to play host to President Eisenhower, Premier Khrushchev and other government chiefs.

But some sources doubted security arrangements could be completed in time. It was expected that anti-communist organizations in New York, particularly remnants of the Hungarian freedom army who escaped the 1956 Soviet tank attacks, would give the Soviet delegation a sizzling reception when it arrived.

OVER